USC Center for Innovation and Research on Veterans and Military Families

Dr. Anthony Hassan

Director and Clinical Professor

USC Center for Innovation and Research on Veterans & Military Families

Anthony Hassan, EdD, LCSW, was appointed clinical professor at the USC School of Social Work in 2009, serving as the inaugural director of the Center for Innovation and Research on Veterans & Military Families and chair of the military social work program. A retired Air Force officer, Hassan brings 25 years of experience in military social work and leadership development.

He previously served as deputy department head of the Leadership Directorate and director of the master's degree program in counseling and leadership at the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado. He transformed the graduate program's curriculum and helped develop a health program research project to study factors promoting resiliency in the Army National Guard.

Prior to the Air Force Academy, Hassan was the CEO of a military community health center, which ranked number one of 10 community health centers in the region. In 2004, during Operation Iraqi Freedom, Hassan served on the first Air Force combat stress control and prevention team embedded within an Army unit. In 2006, he was selected to assist East African countries with capacity building for disaster response. Hassan also led the largest military substance abuse and family advocacy programs in the Pacific.

Hassan also served as the chair of the task force for developing national guidelines for military social work graduate programs as well as a member of the Commission on Professional Development for the Council on Social Work Education. He currently serves on the Los Angeles City Workforce Investment Board and is a mayoral appointee on the Los Angeles Military Veteran Advisory Council, a new initiative out of Mayor Eric Garcetti's Office of Veterans Affairs that will advise his administration on issues affecting the city's military community.

Dr. Carl Castro

Assistant Professor and Research Director

USC Center for Innovation and Research on Veterans & Military Families

Carl Castro, PhD, joined the USC School of Social Work faculty in 2013 after serving 33 years in the Army, where he obtained the rank of colonel. He is also the research director for the USC Center for Innovation and Research on Veterans and Military Families.

Castro began his military career as an infantryman in 1981. Throughout his military career, Castro has served in a variety of research and leadership positions, including commander of the U.S. Army Medical Research Unit-Europe in Heidelberg, Germany, chief of the Department of Military Psychiatry at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research in Washington, D.C., and director of the Military Operational Medicine Research Program, Headquarters, U.S. Army Medical Research and Materiel Command, Fort Detrick, Maryland. Castro has completed two tours in Iraq and peacekeeping missions to Bosnia and Kosovo.

He has been invited to serve on the Board on Army Science and Technology, a convening authority for the discussion of science and technology issues of importance to the Army and overseer of independent Army-related studies conducted by the National Academies. Castro was also appointed chair of a NATO team exploring military-to-civilian transitions. He previously served as chair of another NATO research group on military mental health training and serves as an advisor for several Department of Defense research panels focused on psychological health. Castro has authored more than 150 scientific articles and reports in numerous research areas. His current research efforts focus on assessing the effects of combat and operations tempo on soldier, family and unit readiness, and evaluating the process of service members' transitions from military to civilian life.

Speakers

Rep. Lucille Roybal-Allard
(D-CA), 40th District
U.S. House of Representatives

Rep. Lucille Roybal-Allard is the first Mexican-American woman elected to Congress. The first Latina appointed to the House Appropriations Committee, the congresswoman serves on two subcommittees: Homeland Security, which oversees federal funding for immigration processing, border and port security, and emergency preparedness, and the Labor, Health and Human Services and Education Subcommittee, which oversees federal funding for public schools, workforce training, and health care initiatives. She is also a Senior Democratic Whip.

A national leader on public health, Congresswoman Roybal-Allard co-founded the bipartisan Congressional Study Group on Public Health. The first woman to chair the Congressional Hispanic Caucus (CHC), the congresswoman currently serves as the chairwoman of the CHC's Health Care Task Force. As Task Force Chair she has championed efforts to pass health care reform, with a focus on improving the quality and affordability of health services, prioritizing prevention and reducing the escalating costs of health care.

The congresswoman is the sponsor of several measures to improve the health and well-being of women and children. In 2008, the Newborn Screening Saves Lives Act was signed into law to train doctors and nurses in newborn screening and educate parents about follow-up care. Congresswoman Roybal-Allard has also introduced the Maximizing Optimal Maternity Services for the 21st Century Act to prioritize maternity care by establishing an Interagency Coordinating Committee charged with promoting proven medical practices for healthy mothers and babies.

Dedicated to protecting children and teenagers across the country, Congresswoman Roybal-Allard has introduced the Children's Act for Responsible Employment (CARE) to address abusive and exploitive child labor practices in agriculture. She also authored the STOP (Sober Truth on Preventing) Underage Drinking Act and the Security and Financial Empowerment (SAFE) Act, which were signed into law in 2006 and 2008 respectively. The STOP Act creates an interagency coordinating committee to address underage drinking; a parent focused media campaign; federal research on underage drinking prevention; and community grants to fight underage drinking. The SAFE Act promotes financial stability and personal security for survivors of domestic violence by establishing emergency leave and employment nondiscrimination provisions.

Dr. Charles B. Green, Lt. Gen. (ret.)

Chief Medical Officer, Federal Practice
Deloitte Consulting LLP

Dr. Charles B. Green, Lt. Gen. (ret.), former Surgeon General of the Air Force, joined Deloitte's federal health practice as a director with Deloitte Consulting LLP in 2013, and serves as the chief medical officer for the Deloitte federal health practice. In this role, Dr. Green serves as an advisor to Deloitte's federal and commercial health clients and helps them in their efforts to excel in clinical public health leadership.

In his former role as Surgeon General, Dr. Green served as the functional manager of the U.S. Air Force Medical Service. In that capacity, he advised the Secretary of the Air Force and Air Force Chief of Staff, as well as the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health Affairs on matters pertaining to the medical aspects of the air expeditionary force and the health of Air Force service members and their families. Before joining Deloitte he was a Vice-Chairman and Senior Partner of Martin, Blanck & Associates, a health services consulting practice.

General Green was commissioned through the Health Professions Scholarship Program and entered active duty in 1978 after completing his Doctorate of Medicine degree at the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee. He completed residency training in family practice at Eglin Regional Hospital, Eglin AFB, Fla., in 1981, and in aerospace medicine at Brooks AFB, Texas, in 1989. He is board certified in aerospace medicine. Experienced in disaster relief operations, he planned and led humanitarian relief efforts in the Philippines after the Baguio earthquake in 1990, and in support of Operation Fiery Vigil following the 1991 eruption of Mount Pinatubo.

General Green has served as commander of four hospitals, including Wilford Hall Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas. As command surgeon for three major commands, he planned joint medical response for operations Desert Thunder and Desert Fox, and oversaw aeromedical evacuation for operations Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom. He has previously served as Assistant Surgeon General for Health Care Operations and Deputy Surgeon General.
