

ARE YOU A MENTAL/BEHAVIORAL HEALTH PRACTITIONER WITH AN INTEREST IN COGNITIVE PROCESSING THERAPY (CPT)?

The Center for Innovation and Research on Veterans and Military Families (CIR), part of the University of Southern California School of Social Work, is currently looking for providers to help in the development of an assessment tool which measures knowledge of CPT-C [Cognitive] critical skills.

We are seeking providers to assist in the validation of this tool.

You may be eligible to participate in this project if you:

- Are a licensed mental or behavioral health practitioner (e.g. psychologist, psychiatrist, social worker)
- Have at least 2 years of experience working as a practitioner
- Have received formal training in CPT or CPT-C

Requires approximately 1.5 hours during the week of September 9th-16th, 2015

Experience with military-connected clients is not required.

Participants will receive a $25 gift card in appreciation of their time and contribution.

If you are interested in participating, please contact
Ashley Schuyler at schuyler@usc.edu or (213)821-3609.
